Well- i did have a lawyer, i paid him a retainer, and after meeting with him back in July for only 32 minutes he charged me over 3k and said that i had an "air-tight case" - i went with my wonderful friend, suzanne anderson vaughn, who went with me to that meeting (i was on crutches at that time since i fractured my patella, femur and tibia on the 25th of june)...i am NOW looking for other representation - another good friend Ruth McDonald who lives around the corner suggested a few attorney's that I am contacting this week - she has also been to my house Suzanne and I met in 2015 and she has been to my "principal residence" many times since i first applied for an adu, since she is so VERY helpful as a retired interior decorator....she has also been with to my property in South Carolina (that is why my three vehicles are registered there) - i am trying to buy older manufactured homes to put on my property for my retirement income - survey attached - so the business own the vehicles - Suzanne even came to my "friends thanksgiving dinner" last year at my house with some other friends

In regard to my neighbors (some i have NEVER met, so they have not even met me) could probably not even identify me if i live there or not i have a MOST wonderful idea...I have kept accurate records as to the days I spent in my house, I have had the SAME three housemates since long before i applied for an adu (leases and rent rolls attached-sorry i am not that current since I am way behind in bookkeeping) i will take a daily picture that will include some identifying person that lives on the block, since that will prove that i do live on the block - and we can just shelve this hearing for a year till I am able to prove beyond a shadow of a doubt by daily pictures of where I lay my head sorry for the delay - i have been in the bahamas for over a week and arrived back home early sun am blessings

Good Morning Ms. Favail,

In response to these objections filed by your neighbors as we try to navigate a hearing date that suits all parties, can I kindly get the contact info for your attorney? Thank you
